Dear Board Members and Chair,

The naming of the stations along the Eglinton Crosstown LRT inside Toronto is not important enough to use up Board time. Please stop. Why are you micromanaging small plastic plaques on walls that few of you will ever see?

This is most assuredly not your job. Your job is to improve network mobility for the fourth-largest metro area in North America - you oversee a capital budget in the billions. You are not in a small town, rotating whose turn it is to bring cookies to your meetings in a church basement!

I urge you to drop this agenda micro-item and focus on building the transit network our region needs.

Regards,
Cameron MacLeod
