Why the earlier start time?

The summer months bring with them extreme heat and sun. For the safety of construction crews, some work will start earlier in the morning to take advantage of those few hours before the sun's rays are the strongest. The early start will help prevent workers from overheating, heat exhaustion, and other heat related concerns - especially as crews are performing strenuous activities. The early start will also help stagger crews to avoid long exposure to intense heat and sun.

What to expect

Local residents can expect activity and noise to begin as early as 6 a.m.

NOTE: This does not mean that work will start at 6 a.m. every day or along the entire rail corridor. The early start is in place for certain activities at various times at different locations.
